GENERAL NEWS.

Resignation of Montufar, the Minister from Guatemala.

DEATH OF EX-CONGRESSMAN [illegible] MARSHALL.

Yellow Fever Causing Great Excitement in the Southwest. Disastrous Storm at Milwaukee. A Railroad War Probable.

SPECIAL DISPATCH [illegible]

NEW YORK, August [illegible] Senor Lorenzo Montufar [illegible] to the United States [illegible] in this city yesterday at [illegible] his family at 17 West [illegible] country about the 10th of [illegible] remarks of the day he sent the following letter to President Barrios:

NEW YORK, August [illegible]

Senor Gen. Don Justo Rufino Barrios—Sir: I find myself under the necessity of [illegible] that I have sent my resignation [illegible] Guatemala. It is founded on the reason that I have not the honor of agreeing with your [illegible] policy and that it is [illegible] points of Central American policy, and that it is impossible for me to continue suffering from the treatment which you give to many persons with [illegible] on account of their loyalty. I protest my [illegible] to Guatemala and to America and I subscribe myself your very attentive servant,

LORENZO MONTUFAR.

Senor Herrera, the new Guatemalan minister arrived yesterday on the steamer Pueblo. He declined to speak of the difficulty over the boundary line between Mexico and Guatemala, or commit himself to any expression of opinion regarding President Barrios.

The Texas Pacific Land Grant.

NEW YORK, Aug 4.—Times editorial: The Texas Pacific railroad company were granted 18,000,000 acres of land on condition that the railroad should be built along certain lines indicated. After one [illegible] and one extension of time the company have [illegible] and formally relinquished the work west [illegible] and the line has been taken by the Southern Pacific railroad company, now engaged in building [illegible] on, nearly the same route as that originally [illegible] by the Texas Pacific company. Shall the [illegible] granted to the Texas Pacific company be restored to the United States, or shall the lands so [illegible] and returned be granted to the Southern Pacific railroad company? These questions are answered in reports of the committee unanimously [illegible] that the lands are forfeited although the [illegible] disagree only as to the line of reasoning by [illegible] conclusion is carried out. There is no [illegible] that the Southern Pacific railroad company [illegible] any shadow of right in the forfeited land [illegible] the Southern Pacific road was not built [illegible] stimulus of any reward from the United States for the benefit of the United States.

The Railroad War.

[illegible] August 4.—A dispatch from Chicago to [illegible] foreshadowing a railroad freight war between [illegible] and Pacific coasts has stirred up people [illegible] obtained by taking California trade [illegible] is regarded as sufficient to induce [illegible] to break the pool agreement. All are [illegible] the threat of the southern lines to bill [illegible] and adopt similar improper tactics in [illegible] billing could hardly be considered of any [illegible]. At the same time it was evidently [illegible] the request of the commissioner that these [illegible] be discontinued was insufficient to stop [illegible] what steps he would take to compel the [illegible] of his request it was impossible to [illegible].

Railroad Racing.

[illegible] Aug. 4.—The Union Pacific railway has [illegible] racing overland freight trains against [illegible] route. Two trains loaded with tea have [illegible] from San Francisco to Chicago via the [illegible] Pacific and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy [illegible] days and a fraction. This run exceeds [illegible] made by twenty cars which made [illegible] San Francisco to Kansas City only via [illegible] Pacific and Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe [illegible] days and six hours. It should be [illegible] that the train on the southern route [illegible] the same speed per hour as those on the [illegible] route had the disadvantage of nearly [illegible] miles greater distance and so fell behind [illegible] en route.

No Dams Wanted.

[illegible] Aug. 4.—There is a dam row now in [illegible]. A hydraulic company constructed a [illegible] was torn away on the claim that it polluted the waters. The matter went into the courts, [illegible] company got an injunction restraining [illegible] with its work. The company to-day [illegible] of Italians to reconstruct the dam [illegible] turned out to oppose them. Then [illegible] police showed up, and next there was [illegible] but nobody seriously hurt. [illegible] shall not be rebuilt, courts to [illegible] notwithstanding.

A Chinese Item.

[illegible] Chesapeake which arrived at Baltimore [illegible] Demerara, brought 21 Chinese passengers [illegible] for their native land. Among them [illegible] unmarried man aged 36 years, [illegible] by his brother and aged mother, [illegible] to live on the fortune which the [illegible] accumulated by shop-keeping in Demerara [illegible] during the voyage and when the [illegible] at Baltimore the man died an hour or [illegible] hemorrhage of the lungs. Sin Chung [illegible] good circumstances had seven [illegible] four black and one blue, all of [illegible] the corpse, the blue being on the [illegible] pants, stockings and hat were put in [illegible] his razor and a small wooden box [illegible] a few coins. The richest man in [illegible] of Chinese is Li A Chow, and he is [illegible] family of 12 persons including his [illegible] grand children. His children have [illegible] in Demerara and all speak English.

Officers were elected for [illegible] as follows: President, Rt Rev [illegible] St. Paul; vice president, Rev. J P [illegible]; treasurer, Rev. J. D Bowles of [illegible]; Philip A. Nolan, of Philadelphia [illegible] given by the citizens in the evening.

Work of the Tariff Commission.

[illegible], Aug. 4.—Before the tariff commission [illegible] Gaston L. Feuardent made an argument [illegible] placing on the free list antiquities and [illegible] collection, plaster casts and photographs [illegible] whether for sale or not. Vite, of [illegible] wanted equality of duty on statues [illegible] made in favor of putting batters [illegible] list, also in favor of putting on the [illegible] for the manufacture of [illegible] fertilizers. The effect of this proposition would be to cheapen fertilizers. They were [illegible] cheaper in England than in the United States.

Yellow Fever in the South.

AUSTIN, TEX., Aug. 4.—The wildest rumors fill the [illegible] about yellow fever in Texas. In answer [illegible] telegram from the board of health of New Orleans [illegible] Washington City asking if they were [illegible] Gov. Roberts to-day telegraphed no cases of [illegible] are reported in Texas and Brownsville has [illegible] quarantined against Matamoras. Official information was received to-day by the governor of [illegible] case of yellow fever in New Orleans and he [illegible] notified the health authorities to be [illegible] to quarantine the city at a moment's notice.

Strike among Operators.

DENVER, Aug 4.—A dozen operators in the Western Union office here quit work in a body last night upon [illegible] of the manager to advance their salaries [illegible] entirely out of his power. CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

[illegible] was really a [illegible] in the sugar duties [illegible] burdens of the tariff [illegible] unreasonable and [illegible] was the most important question before the country [illegible] other side now proposed to abandon the work of their own councils to let the tariff go and take up this little shameful apology for a bill.

Sherman said the other side had embarrassed progress of the bill by dilatory tactics in offering amendments and they had preferred to reduce the tobacco tax to the amount of $6,000,000 rather than allow any necessary reduction of the bill to be made and they would have to bear the responsibility of the failure of an effort which had been earnestly made to relieve the people of a considerable portion of their burden of taxation.

Beck characterized Sherman's charge that democrats had embarrassed or delayed the bill, as an absurdity. The amendment he proposed had not been regarded as superfluous or unnecessary and there had been no intimation that his course and that of his associates in the committee on finance and in the senate had not been dictated in the utmost good faith by consideration for public interests.

Hoar said it had not been contended taxes to be taken off by the bill ought not to be done away with. Democrats were opposed to any relief to the people unless they were permitted to dictate the character of that relief. He remembered when there came to the loyal north from Kentucky a threat to wipe out all legislation of the war again when after Maine had gone wrong in a presidential election how the voice of Kentucky for a tariff for revenue only had saved the country from the sorrow and disaster of a democratic administration. Once more the chequeredly seen through bluster and blunder of the senator from Kentucky had come to the rescue of the republican party.

Beck replied he hoped the senator from Massachusetts, when he went home, would tell the people of that state his little bill to take off $50,000,000 in taxes was meant to relieve the poor suffering down-trodden banker, patent medicine and match manufacturers and that it gave no relief worthy of speaking of to anybody else. After further talk, chiefly of a personal nature between Hoar and Vance, the matter went over without action, and senate passed the joint resolution of the house providing temporarily for expenditures of government.

House adjournment resolution was laid on the table for future action. After executive session senate adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Aug 4

Conference report on the bill for the sale of part of the Omaha Indian reservation in Nebraska was concurred in.

Windom from the foreign relations committee reported house bill to establish diplomatic relations with Persia and for the appointment of a consul general with a salary of $5000; passed.

House bill to relieve certain soldiers of the late war from charge of desertion passed. It was so amended as to exclude from its benefits those who served less than 12 months or who intentionally deserted.

The tax reduction bill was then taken up 40 to 20, but was temporarily laid aside to enable Slater to call up the conference report.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

CONGRESS TO ADJOURN ON MONDAY NEXT [illegible]

House Committee Report [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] to the Senate [illegible] the navy [illegible] Monday [illegible] agreed to [illegible] for the [illegible] senators of extra [illegible] for the called session of senate in last October. This item has been a bone of contention between the two houses for weeks past and indications to-day are that the senate will recede from its position. It is estimated that an allowance for mileage for one session each year is sufficient to pay the actual cost of transportation to Washington of senators fully three times. [illegible] sundry civil appropriation bill which was passed by the senate on Wednesday has not been considered in conference but the points of disagreement between the two houses can be easily reconciled and the final passage of the bill by Monday is expected. The house yesterday agreed to the resolution providing for adjournment at noon on Saturday. In the senate however the feeling on the republican side was in favor of adjournment Monday. The tax bill was called up in the senate yesterday and republicans said they should endeavor to pass the bill before adjournment. It is expected however that a quorum will be present in the senate on Monday, it is doubtful if republicans will give further opposition to the democratic policy of talking the bill to death.

A Dying Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The session of congress is dying of legislative old age, and Monday next will, according to all indications, but general understanding, the breath of life will finally depart from the body. There will be less than a [illegible] in order to catch the last words of the presiding officers of the two chambers. A half dozen men on the appropriations committees of the senate and house are doing all the work that remains to be done before adjournment. There are conferees of the general deficiency, naval and sundry civil appropriation bills. The legislative, executive and judiciary bill which has been passed about in conference for the past month was agreed to by both houses yesterday, the senate receding from its proposition which proposed transfer of clerks from the adjutant general's office to the office of surveyor general. The point of difference remains on the naval bill, and house conferees yesterday insisted that the secretary of the navy should be authorized in his discretion to close such of the navy yards as he might think expedient. House conferees on the general deficiency bill are still disputing the claim of senate for mileage at the extra session, but there is no danger that the bill will fail or delay adjournment because of this dispute. Senators it is said will proceed if compelled to do so with the internal revenue bill which is now being made the daily in senate in the words of Senator Plumb as "mere diversion."

The house resolution providing for adjournment to-day was not acted upon by the senate yesterday for the reason that it was not thought advisable to agree to or amend it until the last possible moment. The rules of the house provide that the motion to suspend rules shall be introduced any time during the last days of the session until both houses concur in adjournment. Republican leaders in the house do not wish a flood of bills to be rushed through under suspension of rules with hot haste in the last hours of the session and they have advised their friends in the senate not to call up the resolution at the earliest until to-morrow afternoon.

Report on the Texas and Pacific Land Grant.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The report adopted by the house committee on judiciary yesterday, to accompany the resolution declaring forfeited the lands granted the Texas and Pacific Railroad Co., after giving a history of the Texas and Pacific and reviewing its relations with the Southern Pacific Co., goes on to say: The Texas and Pacific one party to the grant having made no effort to carry it out and having renounced it both informally and formally by acts and by writing there can be no question of the right of the United States as the other party, to resume possession of the proposed grant unless the Southern Pacific have acquired some rights by virtue of some deed or release. On behalf of the Southern Pacific, it is urged the words used in the ninth section in the phrase, "There is hereby granted to the Texas and Pacific Railroad Company its successors and assigns each alternate section etc." authorized the latter company to transfer the lands in question in bulk, to any other person who would receive it charged with the same trust, that the Southern Pacific having received the lands at a time when they had completed their road, which was the same or nearly the same location as that described in the act of March 3 received the lands discharged from trust by reason of its fulfillment. In the opinion of the committee the words "and assigns" do not in this case have this meaning. We think these words describe the nature of estate or words of limitation and do not constitute grantee an agent of the United States to select another corporation which has performed similar work and make it the beneficiary of the grant nor do they constitute grantee an agent to bestow a gratuity. It is further claimed by the Southern Pacific that section 3 authorizing the consolidation, gives the authority needed for the transfer. No facts laid before us savor of any consolidation whereby the Texas and Pacific has absorbed the Southern Pacific. The process would seem to be reversed. The consolidation contemplated by sections 13 and 16 were those whereby other companies were to become part and parcel of the Texas and Pacific. If the Southern Pacific had become part and parcel of the Texas and Pacific it would not be a claimant here. It is further urged in behalf of the Southern Pacific that in so much as the company have done what the United States offered to give the granted lands to the Texas and Pacific it would do equity to replace that the land grant should be transferred to this road. As a request for a gratuity no objection can be made that would arrest the sound judgment of congress but this request is put up on the ground of a claim founded upon equity and [illegible] conscience. The reply seems simple. Congress will never have been justified in offering the lands if it had not deemed the offer was necessary to sustain the road. [illegible]

[illegible] Ismail Pasha [illegible] family, sheiks of the Azhar mosque, muftis of four Sunni rites, grand mufti of Egypt, Copts patriarchs, [illegible] vicars and sheiks, thirty judges, eight under secretaries, 28 civil pashas in [illegible], [illegible] Mudirs and 100 notabilities of various religious denominations.

Reconnoissance Made.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 4.—The 38th regiment made a reconnoissance at 4 this afternoon to a point five miles beyond Ramleh and the posts detachments occupying the gates of the town were ordered to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to the support of the reconnoitering party in event of necessity. The reconnoissance to-day was the most extensive yet made. The 38th and 46th regiments advanced in two columns. The enemy's position was found almost about [illegible] with the exception of a few vedettes. None of their force was observable. A few shots were fired but no casualties. The British returned at dusk.

DeLesseps at War with England.

CONSTANTINOPLE, August 4.—DeLesseps has telegraphed the following to Paris:

I am going to Suez and I have sent the following message to the British admiral: "I learn that the 3d transport for landing troops at Suez has passed by the channel of Maritime canal. This is an act of war and flagrant violation of neutrality obligations against which I formally protest. DELESSEPS."

The following has also been telegraphed to Paris by DeLesseps:

The English are at war with Egypt and circulating a report that France has abandoned protection of the canal over which the English exercise police surveillance acting under authority of the khedive, who is their prisoner. It is urgent that this report should be contradicted. We are determined to resist.

Arabi's Army.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug 4.—H. M. S. Bittern has returned from Aboukir and reports having seen several trains arrive at Aboukir full of soldiers. It is denied that Arabi Pasha has proclaimed a holy war. Persons around Kafr el Dwar Thursday afternoon estimated Arabi Pasha's force at 70,000. Arabi Pasha has issued a proclamation accusing the English of cowardice, taunting them and daring an attack from them. There was some firing Wednesday near Pompey's pillar. Arabi has forbidden the inhabitants to furnish fresh provisions to christians on pain of death.

A Proclamation by Arabi.

Arabi Pasha's proclamation states that Egyptian soldiers with excusable zeal fired only the buildings belonging to hostile Europeans and killed those detected in communication with the enemy, and says the khedive having opened the gates to the English, for this he was deposed by the sultan who will send troops to Egypt to drive out our enemies. Arabi is commanding in Egypt as the representative of the sultan.

The Sultan and Arabi.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 4.—Notwithstanding the declarations of Ottoman delegates to the conference it is not generally believed the decision regarding dispatch of Turkish troops is final. It is considered certain they will not be sent if Great Britain really insists upon their being placed under the order of an English commander, which would be inconsistent with the wishes of the sultan. The sultan cannot openly espouse the cause of Arabi Pasha nor openly break with him.

Egyptian War Notes.

An attack from Aboukir along the sea coast probably Friday is expected.

CALCUTTA, Aug. 4.—The whole army contingent will be dispatched to Egypt by the 10th.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 4.—The director of telegraphs has sent his staff to open cable communication between Said and Bombay. It is reported the sultan will also send a civil mission to Egypt. It is said that he has expressed hope that the difficulty with England may be arranged.

Two transports started from Constantinople for Alexandria last evening with artillery corps.

Suez Occupied by British.

SUEZ, Aug. 4.—Several hundred British marines disembarked and occupied this town with no resistance yesterday. Marines occupied the town to save it from being burned. All Egyptian troops have fled.

Americans in Egypt.

The acting consul general in Egypt telegraphs Secretary Frelinghuysen from Alexandria that the archives of the consulate which it was feared were destroyed have been found at Cairo and that he is on the way to Port Said to attend them. Stone's family who have been saved by a faithful friend and are supposed to be at Ismailia.

Pulled Down His Flag.

PORT SAID, Aug. 4.—The British consul has hauled down his flag on account of the unsatisfactory reply of the governor to a question as to whether he favored Arabi Pasha or the khedive. None of the consuls will return the visit of the governor except the French consul who states that his position is different from that of the British representative.

Sailed for Egypt.

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 4.—The steamship Palmyra, with two batteries of artillery and a large quantity of ammunition sailed to-day for Egypt.

PORTSMOUTH, August 4.—The transport Catalonia to-day took to Egypt Gen. Sir Edward Hamley, Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood and the West Kent regiment. The queen wished speedy reports and the troops heartily cheered her. She was visibly moved.

Conference Proceedings.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 4.—At yesterday's sitting [illegible] protecting the canal was discussed. The Russian representative was impressed with the view that the laws binding the [illegible] required that Turkey should first endeavor to restore order in Egypt. Should Turkey not succeed in this endeavor then the powers should undertake the task. [illegible] Hirschfeld, German representative and [illegible] Austro-Hungarian ambassador concurred in this opinion. Lord Dufferin, British ambassador, said he desired Turkey to take action in conformity with the [illegible] declare Arabi Pasha rebel. Said Pasha, Turkish foreign minister maintained that it was not [illegible] to declare Arabi Pasha rebel until the Ottoman flag was raised in Egypt when their [illegible] to regard Arabi would be determined and measures be taken accordingly. Count Corti, Italian ambassador demanded that the reply from Ottoman representatives that they accepted the invitation of the [illegible] at once be put in writing to which the Ottoman representatives replied that they must first obtain the sanction of the sultan. The conference is awaiting fresh instructions to Ottoman representatives thereon which it is believed will be the conditions of the identical note have been accepted by Turkey.

THE STAR ROUTE TRIALS.

[illegible] Tuesday [illegible] that he had been [illegible] The letter in question he said had been [illegible] and was as much his property as the letter from Walsh would have been.

After some further explanation Judge Wylie said he had no objection to the circumstances of the [illegible] of the letter and would entirely exonerate [illegible] from the charge of unprofessional conduct. Prosecution objected to the letter being used as the matter had not been touched upon in Walsh's direct examination and a long discussion ensued. In the discussion Turner turned to defense and asked why they did not put Rerdell on the stand to rebut McVeagh's testimony.

McSweeney immediately sprang to his feet and said: "We note exception to the language of government counsel."

Merrick—"We'll note your exception, but why do you not put Rerdell on the stand?"

McSweeney—"I note another exception."

Court said he had not yet passed upon the first exception. Again exception could only be asked to the ruling of court. The use of such language was wrong, however, for the law said no influence should be placed on absence of a defendant. An angry discussion followed between counsel which was only brought to an end by court insisting upon maintenance of order and directing counsel to drop the subject. Argument then proceeded on the admissibility of McGrew's testimony, and it was finally rejected.

C. P. Berry, representative in congress from California identified his indorsement on a petition and letter written by him both referring to the Redding and Alturas route. He said he called very often at the department with the object of having service upon this route restored to six trips per week, and was very earnest in his efforts.

H. M. Vail, a farmer of St Louis and also a mail contractor, testified that he had business with the Dorseys and Miner. He never paid Brady for doing anything that the indictment charged. The proceeds of Indian territory routes were thus divided: Vail received one-third, J. W. Dorsey one third, Miner one-sixth and Peck one-sixth. In other states and territories Vail and Miner get one third each, and Peck and Dorsey, one third between them. This partnership continued to April 1879. The business however is a losing one. Cross examination developed nothing.

After an unsuccessful effort to introduce a letter, hearing was adjourned.

Buell's Damaging Testimony.

Defendants in the star route cases are demoralized over the result of the testimony of their witness A. C. Buell, and mutual recriminations are indulged in among defendants counsel. Bob Ingersoll, who called witness to the stand, has been soundly abused for so doing by his legal associates and to-day that usually genial gentleman walked to and fro in front of the court house with an angry frown upon his face only deigning to put in an appearance when the afternoon session began. The damaging character of Buell's testimony becomes more apparent when considered with reference to previously introduced evidence. Walsh swore that Brady paid Buell one thousand dollars. Buell denies this, but admits that Brady loaned him two thousand dollars. After admitting that he had accepted a fee from Walsh while acting as an officer of the senate he was confronted with his card in which he boldly declared that whoever made such a charge lied. Altogether his testimony was a boomerang for the thieves, and seems to have upset their plan of defense.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

An Agreement Hopeless.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Daily News says: It is stated in conservative circles the lords will receive full support of conservatives in commons in maintaining amendments to the arrears bill.

The Standard believes the cabinet yesterday decided to advise the commons to reject both amendments to the arrears bill adopted by the house of lords.

In parliamentary circles prospect of a settlement of differences between the two houses are regarded as hopeless.

Move for a Postponement.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Solicitor Thomas Walsh, arrested in connection with the discovery of arms at Clerkenwell recently intends to apply for the postponement of his trial until the October session, owing to the sudden determination of the crown to call as a witness the Mill street informer, Connell, who will prove the existence of a secret organization in Ireland, having for its object the deposition of the queen.

The minister of commerce is not yet appointed.

TUCSON, Aug. 4.—The Star's special: Mexican advices from Guaymas, Sonora, say that on Monday last [illegible] senator was shot and killed by [illegible] Muriette in a house of ill fame. The slayer is a nephew of the notorious California outlaw, Joaquin Murieta. He killed two men in Los Angeles and made his escape from prison to New York where he was again arrested from whence with a companion he again escaped, and has been here since. He was shot Friday morning by order of the governor.

The fight lasted three hours resulting in the death of [illegible] Private [illegible] and the wounding of [illegible] [illegible] who was wounded. The Indians took all the horses, mules and stores. REGULATION AND RESTRICTION.

Those politicians [illegible] in many states, favor free whisky in ord[illegible] to get votes, are in a fair way to find o[illegible] that there are many people who take ano[illegible] view of the question. So long as men [illegible] drink intoxicating liquors such liq[illegible] ought to be taxed as heavily as they ca[illegible] without creating inducements to comm[illegible] frauds which would render taxation abor[illegible]ve. This is the duty of the general gov[illegible]ment; and hence the laws which tax the manufacture of intoxicating liquors, including beer, wine and ale, should not be repealed, nor should the taxes they impose be reduced. The drink-sellers also should be taxed; and proper regulations and restrictions, to include closing on Sundays, should be provided and enforced. This is the proper work of each state. Where absolute prohibition cannot be enforced regulations to limit and restrict many of the evils that arise from the free sale and consumption of liquors may be imposed, and always with advantage. But the drink sellers, in many of the states, are simply blind to the situation. In contending for unrestricted traffic and open doors on Sundays they are provoking an issue upon which a body of public opinion will be concentrated against them which they cannot possibly withstand. Of their ill advised resistance to proper regulation of the liquor traffic, severer restrictions than would otherwise be provided will be the sure consequence. Politicians who, to gain votes, clamor for the liberty of unlicensed drinking and drink-selling will not rush on very far in their career till they discover their mistake.

These remarks are applicable to the present situation in many states, and notably in California, Ohio, and Indiana. In those states there is active resistance to the effort to keep the traffic in liquors under proper control. It is the peculiar misfortune of the democratic party to be led by blind leaders into one ditch after another. It is now pledged to an erroneous position on the liquor question, at the very time when the public mind is more keenly sensitive to the evils which arise from the sale and consumption of intoxicating drinks than ever before. In California it denounces "sumptuary" laws, by which it means the statutes provided to regulate drink-selling; and moreover, to get the help of the saloon keepers in the coming election it calls for the repeal of the Sunday laws which have long been on the statute book of the state. In Indiana it has been foolish enough to attempt to make prohibition a party issue by pledging itself to the negative side of the question in the strongest manner, thus alienating large numbers of rural democrats who constitute the strength of the party and who refuse to be pledged to the thick-and-thin support of the liquor dealers. In Ohio the democratic party has been sold outright by its managers to those who call for free traffic in liquors and no Sunday. This significant statement comes in the telegraphic reports: "The issue in the coming struggle in Ohio is one between law and order on one side, and free whisky, free beer, and no Sunday on the other. People of the state feel the time has arrived when this question must be settled, whether liquor dealers should pay a just proportion of taxes, or whether other and legitimate enterprises should be taxed with a view of putting money into the pockets of brewers, protecting this business, and caring for its victims in county and state institutions." The peculiarity of the situation in Ohio is this, namely, that the liquor traffic is absolutely free. No license can be required. The people some thirty years ago thought they were voting for prohibition, when in fact the constitutional provision they voted for has ever since made it impossible to hold any effective check upon the liquor traffic. But the state has a Sunday law, and this now is also attacked by the liquor dealers; and politicians who want the votes which the drinkers and drink-sellers are supposed to command, are in full cry with them. They may possibly win this year, because the great mass of people who favor practicable restriction may not yet be able to unite upon a fixed line of action. But they will unite; and the combination for free whisky and beer, and against law and order, will then be put down. A legislature will be elected in Ohio which will submit to the people a constitutional amendment for taxation and control of the liquor business, and such amendment will be adopted by an immense majority of the popular vote.

While there are a large number of temperance people who do not think it possible to make prohibitory legislation, even in the form of constitutional amendments, effective, they do, nevertheless, insist that the manufacturers of liquors shall be taxed, that regulations shall be provided for their sale, that licenses as high as can be collected shall be required, and that bonds shall be given for the orderly conduct of the business. The regulations ought to be of a character which will diminish the number of places at which liquors are sold and keep the business out of the hands of irresponsible persons. Enforcement of the law requiring the saloons to close on Sundays would be a salutary regulation, which, we believe, there would be found a body of public opinion in every state sufficiently strong to enforce. It ought by this time to be manifest even to the dullest comprehension that something is going to be done about this matter in all the states. If prohibition cannot be enforced needful restrictions can be and will be. Politicians who believe the sellers and drinkers of intoxicating liquors omnipotent, who think society can place them under no restraint and has no right to propose it, will find themselves and their babble thrown away together.

THE RAILROAD GRANTS.

It will be observed, by reference to the telegraphic reports, that the house committee on judiciary has adopted a resolution declaring the land grant to the Texas Pacific railroad company forfeited. There is no analogy between this grant and that of the Northern Pacific railroad. The Texas Pacific long since relinquished their undertaking, while the Northern Pacific managers are pushing theirs with an energy which makes the completion of the road certain before the end of next year.

But a minority of the committee, in a supplementary report, make a declaration which is obviously directed against the Northern Pacific grant. It will, however, prove harmless. The house by a decisive vote some days ago refused to adopt a resolution which would have been tantamount to a declaration that the grant to the Northern Pacific should not stand. Again, on the 24th ult., a joint resolution was introduced in the house and referred to the judiciary committee requesting the president to withhold all patents to lands claimed by the company till congress should decide whether the grant were to be forfeited to the United States or not. Those who favored the resolution expected it to be reported back to the house at once, with a recommendation that it be adopted. But no such recommendation has been made, and the fact that action has been taken separately on the Texas Pacific grant indicates that the friends of the Northern Pacific have nothing to fear.

The wonderful strides made in breeding and training trotters is shown with remarkable force by the statement of the National Live Stock Journal, which we quote: "If Maud S. should be matched to perform a mile in 2:08, the odds in favor of time would be less than they were in 1818, when Boston Blue was matched against time to trot a mile in three minutes." In the years intervening a few seconds represented the improvement in running time, but here is nearly a minute knocked off by the trotters.

[illegible] BRIGHT.

It was announced a few days ago by telegraph that John Bright, "British commoner and Christian statesman," would soon visit the United States, and information comes by mail that he will deliver several addresses while here. His late retirement was the result of the same Quaker principles which compelled him to protest against Russia's war upon Turkey in 1854 and against England's war upon China in 1857, and it gives him leisure which he may employ in a visit to this country, to the great gratification of Americans, if not to himself. No Englishman ever landed on our soil who received a more cordial welcome than awaits Mr. Bright. The people of the United States cannot forget that at the outbreak of the war he made a speech in which he said to his constituents, "I advise you not to believe in the destruction of the American Union. If facts should happen by any chance to force you to believe it, don't commit the crime of wishing it. From the very outburst of this great convulsion I have had but one hope and one faith, and it was this: that the result of this stupendous strife might be to make freedom the heritage forever of a whole continent, and that the grandeur and the prosperity of the American Union might never be impaired." The utterer of these words ought to see America before he dies, and he would be received here with something of the same feeling with which our fathers welcomed General Lafayette when he came from France to look upon the nation which he had striven to establish. And Mr. Bright would be welcomed at the south as heartily as at the north, especially since his experience as one of the leading cotton-spinners and manufacturers of England enables him to make valuable suggestions to southern planters concerning their chief industry.

OCEAN TRANSPORTATION.

Fourteen vessels with whole or part cargoes of merchandise are now on passage from New York, Philadelphia and Boston to Portland. It is proposed by the New York clipper line, through whose agency several of this fleet are coming, to regularly hereafter dispatch vessels for this port, just as is now done for San Francisco. Why this has never been done before is marvelous. Almost every clipper arriving at San Francisco brings goods for Portland merchants. The charges of transfer and reshipment, added to the original freight rate on goods so received, have been a very considerable tax and a wholly useless one. Enough pieces of cargoes come each year to make several whole ones, which might just as well come direct to Portland as to turn in at the Golden Gate. Vessels may easily be secured in eastern ports for this trade because after arrival here, or even before, they are in favorable situation for wheat charter to Europe. It is not possible that the Northern Pacific will do away with an ocean trade well established. Many classes of goods of great bulk and small proportionate value can be brought the long voyage cheaper than by rail across the continent. Our merchants, it is to be hoped, will discriminate in their sea shipments in favor of ships bound direct for Portland.

Writers who have been following the drift of affairs in Egypt are speculating upon the possibilities of a "holy war," by which they mean a combination of all Mohammedans under the inspiration of a purpose to make the undertaking in which Arabi Bey is engaged a common cause. The great Moslem family, comprising about one hundred and eighty millions of souls, is composed of many and widely scattered races and tribes. Extending from the pillars of Hercules on the west to the Chinese wall on the east, and from the Danube and the Caucasus to the Indian archipelago, and bound together by a common faith, they they are ever ready to forget all minor differences and make common cause against any attack upon their sacred tenets. Every movement prejudicial to the cause of Islam is caught up by the hundred Mohammedan newspapers that are printed in Persian, Turkish and Arabian, and scattered over the whole territory of the prophet, exciting the Moslem heart with memories of the crusades, and only a spark may be necessary to fire the train which would inaugurate one of the bloodiest wars of modern times. So some writers seem to think; and yet numbers, when scattered so widely and illy provided with the means of making war, would have little significance. Great Britain, by concentrating her forces upon a few points, could hold them all in check and soon wear out their tumultuary efforts.

Five years appears to be the utmost limit to the time in which our brothers across the water care to keep the peace and refrain from cutting one another's throats. During the last thirty-four years Europe has waged seven big wars and the period of peace, five years, has almost elapsed again since the Russian troops halted at the gates of Constantinople. In 1848-49 domestic revolution disturbed nearly every monarchy in Europe. From 1853 to 1856, France and England carried on against Russia the Crimean war; in 1859 began the struggle of France and Austria that resulted ultimately in the restoration of Italy to a place among nations; Prussia almost monopolized the field for a decade, beginning with the Schleswig-Holstein war in 1864, the war with Austria in 1866, and with France in 1870-71. In 1877-8 Russia and Turkey appealed to the court of last resort, and England now has been caught in a political whirlpool from which no simple practice fire with big guns will rescue her.

Is the country never to be done with the Guiteaus and Scovilles? As if its cup were not already full, Scoville now again presents himself at Washington with an appeal to congress for compensation for his services in defending the assassin. There is neither law, reason nor righteousness in the proposition. Scoville forced himself, or was forced by his wife into the management of the case, for the sake of the notoriety he would get out of it, and there is no good reason why the government should now pay him.

The steamer Ocklahama will begin the work of dragging St. Helens bar to-day. The harrow or rake lately in use at the mouth of the Columbia, and which there proved to be well adapted to the service, has been brought up and will be employed. The current is now quite strong and much benefit is expected from the effort which will be made under the direction of the government engineer and Captain Richard Hoyt, the well-known river pilot. The O. R. & N. Co. bears the whole expense.

Goldwin Smith thinks the best Irish land act would be one requiring the landlord when he evicted an Irish tenant for the purpose of relieving the estate, instead of turning him adrift, to give him a free passage to this side of the Atlantic. A trifling impediment to this plan, however, would be the difficulty of framing an act requiring this country to keep him after he came here.

Vessels suitable for wheat carriage, which bring paying cargoes here, make enormous profits. Charter rates are on a basis which pays not only for carriage of a cargo of wheat to Europe, but also for the carriage of the load of rock brought here in default of cargo. A ship coming here loaded, thus gets one rate for coming and two rates for the Atlantic trip.

The fishing season in the rivers of southern Oregon will soon begin. The product of the Umpqua and Siuslaw last season was about twelve thousand cases. The fish, while not equal to the "Chinook," or Columbia river salmon, is of good quality and sells readily in European markets.

Congress will adjourn, so a dispatch says, on Monday at noon. Then will the anxious congressmen fly home and "whoop 'er up" for the fall elections.

CITY.

DID SHE WANT TO DROWN HERSELF?—About half-past twelve this morning a gentleman who was returning from a whist party in East Portland noticed as he came up Fourth street a woman walking rapidly, as if excited. He increased his pace, and was gaining on the woman when she crouched behind a wood pile near the brick yard. He walked past, then turned back and spoke to her kindly, asking what cause could have brought her out at so late an hour and offering assistance if she needed it. The only reply, given in tones denoting great excitement, was that she would not speak to him. He went up the street, but watched the woman until she started down the path west to the river bank. Her appearance and manner impressed our informant with the thought that she intended to drown herself.

WEARY OF LIFE.

George Kingsland Commits Suicide on Marquam's Hill.

COOL PREPARATION FOR THE DEED.

Probable Circumstances which Led to the Rash Act—His Previous Life a Checkered Career—Some of His Amours.

Yesterday afternoon, between the hours of 12 and 1, George Kingsland committed suicide with a pistol on Marquam's hill, about one mile from the city. The body was found in a lonely spot near a small foot path, and all the circumstances point to the deed having been carefully calculated and coolly carried out. Kingsland's life has been a checkered one, and at times he has shown [illegible], especially when out of work. He was a man about 38 years of age, of medium stature, slender build, sharp features, with brown hair and light moustache. He was dressed in a business suit, light pantaloons and [illegible] hat.

THE BOY WHO HEARD THE SHOT.

John Thompson, a ten-year-old boy, whose mother lives on Marquam's hill, came to the city on an errand, and returning took a short cut through the woods by a steep footpath up the hill. While climbing up the path he was startled by the sound of a pistol shot a short distance above him. Hearing nothing further he went on toward home, but in a few yards he again stopped, horrified at the sight of a dead body lying in the winding path, the head lying down the hill and the face covered with blood, which was still gushing forth from a ghastly wound in the skull. Making a circuit around the body the frightened boy ran with all his speed toward home, which was not far distant. He told his mother what he had seen and she bade him run back to the city at once and tell the chief of police.

THOUGHT IT WAS A MURDER.

During his return to the city the boy's excited mind had conceived all sorts of horrible things, and upon his arrival at the police station he announced that a man had been shot and he had seen it, and the man who did it had run away. The officers supposed, of course, a murder had been committed. It was shortly after one o'clock and Chief Lappeus was present. He at once secured a horse and buggy and drove hurriedly to the scene, guided by the boy. When he got there he found collected several people of that neighborhood who had been alarmed by Mrs. Thompson.

FINDING THE PISTOL.

Mr. E. A. B. Phelps, one of the neighbors who had come to the spot, had lifted up the body and finding it still warm, had placed the head up the hill preparatory to seeing if any spark of life still remained. In so doing he discovered in the man's clenched right hand, which had been lying under the body, a pistol. This he took, and seeing that the man was dead, started to notify the coroner. He arrived at Coroner Cooke's office about half an hour after the boy reached the police station, and the coroner also procured a wagon and started out.

THE FATAL WEAPON.

The pistol with which Kingsland had shot himself was a five-barreled revolver, stamped the "White Star." It was of a cheap make, with long cylinder and short barrel. The caliber was 38-100 and two cartridges still remained in the cylinder undischarged. Two chambers were empty and in the remaining one, under the hammer, was an empty cartridge shell. The weapon was nearly new, showing but little use. When brought to the coroner's office the cylinder pin was missing, but as there is no spring upon the pistol to hold it in place, it probably dropped out in carrying it to the city, Mr. Phelps holding in his hand muzzle downward all the way.

THE PREPARATIONS.

The first thing noticed by Chief Lappeus when he arrived at the spot where the dead man lay, was a paper sticking out of the upper side pocket of his coat. This the chief drew out and examined. It was a copy of the Sunday Welcome of July 23d, and upon the upper margin was written in pencil, in clear, bold hand, "My name is George Kingsland, from Jersey City, New Jersey. This Friday, Aug. 4, 1882. Born April 18th, 1844." Between the lips of the dead man, with his teeth firmly closed upon it, was a cigar, the light of which had gone out with that of the life that had placed it there.

DESTROYING DOCUMENTS.

Chief Lappeus also noticed upon the ground little pieces of torn paper, scattered on every side among the leaves and brush. None of the scraps were more than an inch in size, but examination of a few pieces served to show the torn fragments were of envelopes, bills and a letter, written in a woman's delicate hand. It was evident that Kingsland had torn and scattered these papers but a few moments previous to committing the suicide. The scraps were carefully collected by the chief and brought to the city.

BRINGING IN THE BODY.

After carefully examining the locality for further evidence, the chief, with the assistance of the men collected there, placed the body in the buggy and started back to the city. He met Coroner Cooke about half way and explaining the case his presence to the latter, turned over the body. It was a ghastly sight, being covered with blood and everything remaining as he had been found, except the pistol taken away. At the morgue it was laid out as he had died, awaiting the visit of the coroner's jury, which was immediately summoned.

THE INQUEST.

Jasper Fuller, A. D. Stuart, John Kealey, J. W. Walsh, Thos. Moher and John Dawson were selected as jurors, and the inquest began. Several witnesses were examined, among them the boy who discovered the body and the man who found the pistol. Both stated what has already been made known. Mr. J. H. Brenner, proprietor of the Esmond house, testified that Kingsland had been stopping with him for about two months; that he was out a great deal at night, and that last night (Thursday) he did not go to bed, but sat in the office all night talking with the clerk. He seemed to be jolly and in good spirits. Other evidence, believed to be material to the case, not being ready, the coroner adjourned the inquest until 9 o'clock this morning.

HIS EFFECTS.

There was nothing whatever of value in the pockets of Kingsland. He had had no money for several days, but had a good watch, which he was carrying upon Thursday night. What has become of it is not known, but it is supposed that he pawned it and used the money that same night. At his room in the hotel was a small trunk and a bundle of clothes ready for the wash. The contents of the trunk were linen and underwear, toilet articles, letters, photographs, etc. The letters were examined by the coroner and will throw some light upon his identity.

HIS LAST AMOUR.

Kingsland became enamored of Clara Belmont, an inmate of a house of ill repute on the northwest corner of Front and Morrison. He promised to give her $100 and take her away for a trip. Thursday night he visited her and was informed that his attentions were no longer pleasant. He came back to the Esmond and told several of his acquaintances that his girl had broken off with him. After [illegible] he returned her photograph. Yesterday morning she sent him a note, demanding $15 due her, and threatening, in case of his refusal to pay it, to give him away to his friends. The supposition is that immediately after receipt of the note, he started for Marquam's hill.

HIS HISTORY.

Kingsland came to Portland about fourteen months ago and was given employment in J. Kohn's clothing store shortly afterwards. He had previously been employed in Beamish's furnishing goods store in San Francisco and brought good recommendations. He was a fair business man but spent his nights in dissipation. Two weeks ago he was discharged. His father was a prominent banker in Jersey City and committed suicide about three months ago, full particulars of which were published in THE OREGONIAN telegraphic columns.

LOOKING FOR A CLUE.

The scraps of paper which the Chief picked up were spread out upon a table at his office last night, and officer Frank Goodwin spent three hours arranging them, for the purpose of discovering a possible cause for the suicide. Not a scrap of paper had been missed, and a complete letter was put together, with an envelope in the same handwriting and several bills of minor importance, all of which were receipted. The epistle is not of recent date and in itself furnishes no clue, but future developments may give it a stronger bearing upon the case. The fact of its attempted destruction makes it worthy of more than a passing notice.

THE TORN LETTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12, 1882,
1663 Market street.

DARLING GEORGE: Just arrived here this morning from Sacramento. Received your dear good letter. I leave here on the 17th for Humboldt Bay; play at Eureka 19, 20, 21; Arcata 22d; Eureka 23d, 24; Ferndale 25; Eureka, 26; leave on the steamer for S. F. on 27th; possibly play Oakland two nights. Then and write me so it will reach me at Humboldt Bay, can, if not, write just to S. F. Po. Office and then I'll be sure to receive it. I often wonder what you'll be doing on the fifth of June this year. I will come on a Monday. How you did comfort me that day. If it had not been for you I would have died myself that day. I was so discouraged and down-hearted. I hope some day to be a little big comfort to you. * * * Just as soon as I save enough I am going to get my divorce. I will receive with this troupe thirty dollars a week and all expenses paid and the manager will not be with us. He says if I will stay up about one hour later after the theater is out and keep the key of the ticket box, and help to count up, and take a sworn statement of everything, and telegraph to him every morning, he will give me twenty more, so I'll be earning fifty dollars a week if I get it. I never received a cent with this last company, but I did not care or expect to receive any as I owed that manager over a hundred dollars and never had such a nice trip in all my life. Everybody [illegible] house tell me I look ten years younger. I had [illegible] a good rest in Sacramento. You can not [illegible] how tired and worn out I was that morning [illegible] you. Rehearsal is called at two o'clock [illegible] here it is half past one. I was so worried [illegible] dream I had about you last night [illegible] as soon as I reached here I [illegible] write you. I thought you was [illegible] and down the room in great trouble with [illegible] clasped on your forehead, and I wanted to [illegible] you, and it was a long time before you [illegible] me, but at last I succeeded. Tell Nettie [illegible] write to her this eve. Tell her I received [illegible] to" and am just delighted with it. Tell [illegible] let any one break my doll with the eyes. [illegible] as received and I will give you the dates. [illegible]

Yours lovingly,
M[illegible]

WHO THE WRITER IS.

From other letters found among Kingsland's it is learned that the writer of the above [is an] actress quite well known in Portland and her name is Mollie Clayton. During the engagement in this city she played the part in "Our Boarding House," and at [illegible] married to a dissipated Englishman and [illegible] unhappy life. It is probably this man [she] refers when she speaks of getting a divorce.

A CHECKERED CAREER.

Kingsland was in San Francisco [illegible] and was doing well in a business way. [illegible] ried and had a little daughter [illegible]. Through some scheming of a [illegible] got in a business trouble with a [illegible] grave and left the state. He was [illegible] August of 187[illegible], and at that time [illegible] troduction to Mr. G. Rosenthal. [illegible] employment here then, but went to [illegible] had obtained from the U. S. govern[ment] [illegible] appointment as assistant keeper of the N[illegible] lighthouse; while there he speaks of [illegible] self up forever from the world. And[illegible] friend attempts to estrange him from [illegible] was living in Oakland at the time, but [illegible] ceed. His wife wrote to him frequently and always with a loving tone in the letters. Then come letters from a friend, in the fall of 1879, saying that his wife is very sick and her death is to be feared. After this the regular letters [illegible] his wife cease from her, and [illegible] with other women begins. Soon after this period he returned to San Francisco, where he remained until [illegible] time in the month of April of the present year, when he again returned to Portland.

SUICIDE OF A FORMER PORTLANDER.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug 4.—Jacob Greenberg, a Hebrew, aged 50, was found by his sons this morning in a lot back of the Zion M. E. church, at the corner of Fourth and San Antonio streets, with a wound in his head above the left temple. He was breathing, but insensible, and still remains so. The wound is pronounced fatal. It was inflicted by a revolver, which lay beside him, the act being evidently suicide. He has a large family, from whom he is separated. Family troubles are believed to be the cause of the deed.

Mr. V. K. Strode, of this city, master of Unity Lodge, A. O. U. W., received a telegram yesterday announcing this act, and asking whether Greenberg was in good standing in the lodge. He answered in the affirmative.

Greenberg formerly kept a cigar store on Morrison street near Fifth, but was not successful in business. His daughter was quite accomplished and frequently sang at lodge entertainments. The family left here about a year ago.

CRICKET MATCH.

This afternoon the game will take place on the East Portland grounds, the ground at South Portland having been found too hard for safe playing. Wickets will be pitched at 3:00, and the sides chosen are as follows:

NOTES FROM ASTORIA.

ASTORIA, Aug. 3.

What an incredible change it is to [illegible] from the [illegible] of the city [illegible]. It is [illegible] just like any other place [illegible] rainy day. It is [illegible]. The water [illegible] the air overhead is as sad as [illegible] Tongue Point's island [illegible] they coin the atmosphere into twenty dollar pieces and ship it off to England to pickle beef and [illegible] for the [illegible] of poor Jack. Everything about this place has an air of those fearful men who are [illegible] with clothing and aristocratic [illegible] eyebrows. A group of them stood by as I landed from the Fleetwood, the captain of which carried me down from Portland scott free. I noticed with some fear and palpitation this array of millionaires standing on the wharf, for I had read about them in the Seattle papers, how they stood here beside the sea and throttled the commerce of Oregon and Washington territory, till each and every man of them had become a millionaire. They greeted me very kindly as I walked up the plank.

"Hello, my hearty," said Captain Hustler, extending a hand on which blazed a sapphire worth $[illegible]. "Shake your hand to the wind, my tulip, and we'll see you through," said Capt. Flavel, handing me a cigar which cost at the rate of $544 per box.

"This is my tailor—on this state," remarked Capt. Wass, presenting me to a number of old substantial [illegible] who stood by, dressed in broadcloth and velvet. Just then I was lifted into a magnificent blue chariot, drawn by six cream-colored stallions, and whirled to my hotel, where a deaf mute gave me a champagne bath and recuperated me from the fatigue of the journey.

This climate is glorious and life-giving. It expands your lungs and brightens your eyes amazingly after being cooped up in Portland for six long months. True, I do not think it equal to that of the eastern slope of the Blue mountains along the road between Baker City and Canyon City. I never saw any that was. But that land of enchantment is four days' journey from Portland, and I cannot stay away but two in all. So it is pretty good to get down here at a much hardtack, fried clams and fat salmon, as you sniff in this glorious breeze and grow fat over it. I hear some men say the smell of the canneries is unhealthy—that's clear rubbish. Animal decomposition does not hurt you to inhale it, like decomposition of vegetable matter. A hundred pounds of rotten cabbage will breed more disease than a ton of putrid beef.

The salmon season ended up on Tuesday and the canneries are about through with their season's work, except testing, labelling and boxing the "crop" for export. Had the season lasted five days longer, the pack would have been the largest on record. As it is, it will not fall short of 525,000 cases, according to the computations of two of the shrewdest and best posted men in the business. The quality has been superb and in no season since the inauguration of the industry have the fish been so fat. The average catch per boat was forty fish per day for the last ten days. On Friday night one cannery got 2340 fish from 38 boats, which is over 60 fish to the boat. Of these, of course, one-third goes to the cannery for the use of nets and boat and the other two-thirds are bought at 60 cents, although 70 was paid to men who had boats and nets of their own. This left a fisherman $24 as his day's work, most of whom divide equally with the boat-pullers, as some of them got tired of paying their boat-pullers by the month.

The cost of nets is the greatest expense attendant upon this business. There is hardly a cannery which has less than thirty boats, costing an average of $250. To make her net takes 210 pounds of Irish twine, worth $1 25 per pound, making $262 50 for twine; the ropes for this net cost $70 more and the labor of making the net costs 22½ cents per fathom, or $120 for the net, so that the total cost of a net averages about $460. At the end of the season this net is useless and cannot be sold in one case out of a hundred. Kinney's establishment has about 90 boats. Hence his nets cost him over $4000 for a single season before he gets a single fish. Everything is expense at the start. The whole river with its 1180 boats caught only enough to pack 30,000, or less than 1000 cases to each of thirty-five canneries, during the month of April.

The fishery law of Oregon is in need of great amendment, and even then it is of no good unless more rigidly enforced than at present. Now all the cannery boats are laid up, yet there are not less than 200 boats on the river to-night catching salmon to pickle in barrels. To punish these fellows would be up hill work, as they would all swear if caught, that they were catching them for their family use. Hence the law works a hardship against responsible parties only and lets all the conscienceless tramps go free.

Again, the law works wrong, because its dates are wrong. The close time is from March 1 to April 1, whereas it should be from March 1 to April 20 or 25. Let the law be changed in this respect and let it be properly enforced so as to punish any man who runs at that time, and the fishermen would make as much while the canneries would make more. Meanwhile what fish did get into the river would be undisturbed, and being strong, fat fish, could work their way up to their hatching grounds on the Umatilla or Spokane rivers, or even to the Maiad and Pend d'Oreille, without fear of molestation. This would save the expense of a government hatchery on the river. With a season extending from April 20 to August 10, the product would be as large, while the supply would hold out longer. I commend these points to the consideration of the incoming legislature.

Most of the Chinese laborers employed at the canneries have been paid off and are leaving for Portland. Some of them will get work on the railroads and a few will go up the Columbia and Snake to work the bars for fine gold. Astoria looks lively and there appears to be plenty of money in circulation.

GRIZZLY.

A Word for the Northern Pacific.

Chicago Tribune.

The Northern Pacific had nothing but its land grant from the government, and most of the land when granted was supposed to be worthless, as much of it has since been proved to be. The Central and Union Pacific not only had enormous grants of land, but they also had a cash subsidy of $65,000,000—a sum sufficient to build the roads without the sale of an acre of land or the expenditure of a cent of private capital. The Northern Pacific, by comparison, was not too generously treated. It should be remembered, too, that the latter road has opened up to settlement a new and fertile portion of the public domain, and has already made immense additions to the national wealth. The feeling is very general, in this section of the country at least, that no substantial injustice will be done if the Northern Pacific shall be permitted to go on and complete its road under the terms of the original contract.

THE MONTANA TRADE.

PORTLAND, Aug. 4th.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

I have lately been struck with the most frequent reference in your [illegible] to the new [illegible] line of transportation which is to be inaugurated from the Pacific coast to Missoula, Montana. Permit me to say that I think too much importance cannot be attached to this movement and that an earnest effort should be made at the first opportunity by our merchants to establish favorable and permanent business relations with all the principal firms in that section. Less than a year ago, when in the interior states, I had occasion to notice the great feeling of dissatisfaction which was created among the Montana tradesmen against the overland railroads, which exercised a most oppressive monopoly over all the trade of that district. To prevent the shipment of California sugar, tea, rice and canned goods from the Pacific coast and thus secure to itself the transportation of those items from the east, the Union Pacific railway made, over the Utah & Northern road from Ogden to Dillon, the terminus, rates of freight on these articles which totally threw them out of the Montana market, and have since then held the people of Missoula and vicinity in bondage as far as regards shipments from this coast.

It is, therefore, not strange that the people of Northern Montana hail with delight the advent of a new transportation system to them from Portland direct, which, having no interest in common with the burdensome monopoly which has been hugging them to death hitherto, will at once serve to emancipate them from the oppression under which they have labored. With this favorable issue brought about by a system which is reaching out to them from the shores of the Pacific, they will naturally turn towards this metropolis of the northwest with a feeling of relief and in a cordial spirit which, if promptly reciprocated by the merchants of our city, will bid fair to bring about the most pleasant and profitable traffic between the interior and the coast.

Already I see by a clipping from the Missoulian, that the people of that country buy the bulk of their finishing lumber in Chicago, at prices with which even without considering the decrease in a haul of 900 miles in favor of Portland, our lumber men can readily compete. Our fruits, fresh and canned and our fresh salmon, as well as the woolen goods which we can manufacture, will find a ready market in Montana and can be disposed of at much less than Chicago prices with profit to the producer.

All these opportunities are but the harbingers of the full benefits which are to follow in the train of the completed Northern Pacific and are but the first faint rumblings of the tremendous "boom" which I hear predicted on all sides by our towns people. I am an old man and have lived long enough to learn the value of opportunities lost and to know that time should be taken by the forelock. Let our merchants, therefore, be not slow to appreciate the situation. With the co-operation of our great transportation companies, who cannot and will not fail to keep their glowing promises of support, our city, soon to be the thriving terminus of a transcontinental line of 2000 miles in extent, has within its borders many fortunes to be made. Who will make them?

The assessment roll of the city of New Tacoma foots up $800 000

Five brick buildings have been built in Dayton since the April fire

Allen J Miller of Puyallup has sold five tons of his hop crop for 30 cents a pound Ezra Meeker has sold ten tons to be delivered in October at 40 cents This last is an eastern order

Philip Yeney's ranch of 480 acres on Russell creek near Walla Walla yielded 9300 bushels of wheat The grain was threshed with an old fashioned Pitts machine using steam power Six days were occupied in the work

The election in New Tacoma on Tuesday on the question submitted by the school directors to impose a tax of $2500 for use in purchasing grounds for a central school house renting and furnishing school rooms and for general school purposes was carried without a dissenting vote in favor of the tax.

It is found that the ground of the location selected for the new railroad shop at New Tacoma is too soft for the weight of a stone foundation without the great expense of going down with the walls to a depth of eight or ten feet and of laying a very broad footing Therefore cedar piles twenty feet long to the number of 300 will be driven for the foundation

Union: The deputy sheriff of Columbia in striving to run down the murderers of Cummings at New York Bar, met two men in the highway the other day, and presenting his gun ordered them to throw up their hands After he had examined them to his satisfaction he let them pass and they, on reaching a habitation reported that they had been stopped by a highwayman.

E E Hunt, of Steilacoom, has built a small launch twenty feet long on keel and twenty four feet long over all, with eight feet beam and three feet depth of hold She is to be supplied with a three horse power engine and propeller, which are being made by Lister & Co, of this city Her speed will be nine miles an hour She is intended to carry the mail from Steilacoom Artondale and McNeil Island

The first hops were grown in the Puyallup valley in 1866 by Jacob Meeker The first crop was 185 pounds, which he dried in the loft over the kitchen stove and which he sold in Olympia at 85 cents per pound There are now 64 hop-growers in the valley with an aggregate of 685 acres The largest field belongs to Van Ogle, and contains 52 acres A number of fields in the valley have for years past yielded 2000 pounds to the acre The season's crop in the valley will not be less than 900 000 pounds

THE ROAD TO INDIA.

Russia's Rapid Advance Upon the English Domains in the East—The Battle-Ground of Nations.

New York Herald

The alarming situation of affairs in Egypt and the efforts now being made by Great Britain to preserve the road to Egypt by the Suez canal bring into renewed prominence the endeavor of Russia to reach India from the Caspian On the 10th of March a treaty was concluded between Russia and Persia defining the territories of the czar and the shah to the east of the Caspian sea.

Modern history perhaps offers no more striking contrast than do the patience consistency and perseverance of Russia and the fitfulness and the inconsistency of England in pursuance of their respective policies in Central Asia. Only a few years ago England was in a flame of indignation because Russia had advanced to Khiva. To-day Russia is not only in possession of the desert tracks—larger in in extent than France—that lie to the south of Khiva, but she has planted her standard in the well watered fertile belt bounded on the north by the Tekke Turcomans' country, and on the south by the great salt desert of Khorassan, and which forms the glacis of England's Indian empire It is not England but it is Russia that has at last secured a "thoroughly scientific frontier"

A short time ago M de Giers repeatedly assured Lord Dufferin—then ambassador at St. Petersburg—that Russia had no intention of advancing on Merv The sincerity of these assurances are now proved beyond any doubt, for Merv is no longer of the slightest importance to Russia, who now commands three routes—all to the southwest of Merv—which constitute the "inside track" to Herat the recognised key to India.

Askabad—a strongly fortified town, 320 miles to the southeast of Krasnovodsky—has recently become the great military and commercial center of Russia in these regions. The Russians have already constructed a railroad from Krasnovodsky—which possesses the best harbor in the Caspian sea—to a point 60 miles to the southeast of Burma. In a few months this railway will be completed as far as Askabad, which will then be in direct communication—railway and Caspian steamers—with the entire railway system of European Russia The treaty just concluded gives Russia the complete command of two passes through the mountain chain ranging from 8000 to 11,000 feet high that forms a portion of the new boundary line These two passes being as they now are in the hands of Russia enable her to command no less than three separate routes, all amply provided with water by which very large armies could simultaneously and with the greatest celerity be marched to Herat.

Although the Russian government is perfectly sincere in disclaiming the desire for an immediate advance Indiaward nevertheless it should be remembered that energetic young Russian officers living in the dull stations of Central Asia naturally wish to win for themselves promotion and reputation It is such fiery spirits that in the case of all vigorous nations, have paved the way for future conquest It was thus that England herself gradually absorbed the whole of India, where almost every advance and territorial acquisition was carried out in direct opposition to the central government So it is with Russia. And now Herat—the key of India, situate in the centre of an extensive and fertile valley that forms the natural garden and granary of Central Asia—has become the spur to prick the sides of the intent of every aspiring Russian officer The climate of Herat is perhaps the finest in the world The soil is exceedingly fertile and is watered by perennial streams Iron and lead mines abound, and the Herat silk is famous The race between Russia and England for Herat in which England is now so heavily handicapped must soon take place

Eastern Freight Situation.

NEW YORK Aug. 4—The freight market per clipper via Cape Horn is still fairly active and when it is remembered that this is the dullest period of the whole year, it is rather remarkable especially as railroads have succeeded in obtaining quite a number of new shippers since the 1st of July that heretofore had been patrons of clippers This is very encouraging and shipment of raw material as well as manufactured goods is likely to be quite extensive especially if there should be active trade on the Pacific coast during the ensuing fall and winter The Oracle has completed her cargo which includes 4000 kegs nails 1000 barrels beer sixty barrels whisky, 150 barrels hemp 100 cases cider 5000 cases oil 8000 cases turpentine 636 coils rope [illegible] coal 700 tons steel rails Rates are firmer under growing scarcity and higher prices for ships Fair quotations are for weight $8 per ton iron 7@8 per ton nails 30c per keg oil and turpentine 30 per case canned goods 17½@ [illegible] per case whisky $2 [illegible] per barrel cement plaster and rosin $1 [illegible] lumber $15@25 per thousand feet [illegible] for tonnage is still very general especially among grain and petroleum trades but business is restricted by scarcity of available tonnage and high rates The current California trade is well supplied for the present and neither of the lines are at all anxious Overland freights are fairly active and shipments in the aggregate are large including [illegible] canned goods 450 kegs syrup [illegible] 20 bags nuts 225 cases [illegible] bags coffee 700 [illegible] wine 106 bbls currants [illegible] cheese 100 bxs [illegible]

A Grain Deal Question

CHICAGO Aug 4—A deputation of shorts appeared before the board of trade committee appointed to fix settlement of prices for July wheat yesterday and challenged its right to fix prices on the following grounds First invalidity of the rule under which the committee was appointed second illegality of the committee under the rule third composition of the committee it being charged that some of its members were interested in the deal on which they were to pass The committee declared the last allegation groundless and took the others under advisement

Southern Crops.

WASHINGTON Aug 4—Reports from the southern received by grain centers in the east show remarkable grain production in the south this year States which have heretofore been importers of bread stuffs are now exporting quantities of fine wheat Georgia and South Carolina which always heretofore bought wheat last week shipped 100 000 bushels to grain dealers in New York and Baltimore In Baltimore last week 250 000 bushels of wheat were received from the south
